

Do you know your inspector and the credentials they hold as a qualified inspector?

Does your inspector possess the current ICC & IRC certifications for state building code requirements?

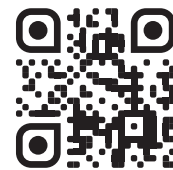

If you are not aware, or if the inspectors you have referred to your clients do not have this vital knowledge and credentials, visit the Georgia Association of Home Inspectors website. Go to GAHI.com, to select from over 30 Code Certified R5 Certified Inspectors.

A Code Certified R5 Certification is the ICC certification necessary to be a fully-qualified home inspector of single and two-family dwellings.

Additionally, you'll find inspectors who are certified compliant with the GAHI standards of practice – the most stringent standards in the industry.

You don't want an inspector guessing at presumptive issues. You want the inspector with the credentials to back up any issue cited during an inspection.

Keeping the standard high and maintaining the benchmark in home inspections!

Scan to locate a GAHI inspector

GAHI is a 33+ year professional association in the home inspection industry representing the Gold Standard of professionalism and knowledge.

Go to GAHI.com for further information regarding GAHI, its members and becoming a member.